

Exeter man flees in underwear, charged with domestic assault

Charlea Estes

According to a statement released by the Exeter Police Department, a man was arrested early Sunday morning, January 22, after an assault, and was found in a field wearing nothing but underwear. Nathan Lane England, 19, of Exeter was charged with felony domestic assault in the second degree and assault in the 4th degree, a misdemeanor.

England was arrested after a 911 call alerted authorities to an alleged domestic assault in progress. According to the affidavit of probable cause, England got into an argument with his girlfriend at a residence on Maple Drive in Exeter. Law enforcement observed red marks on the victim's neck, chest and arms.

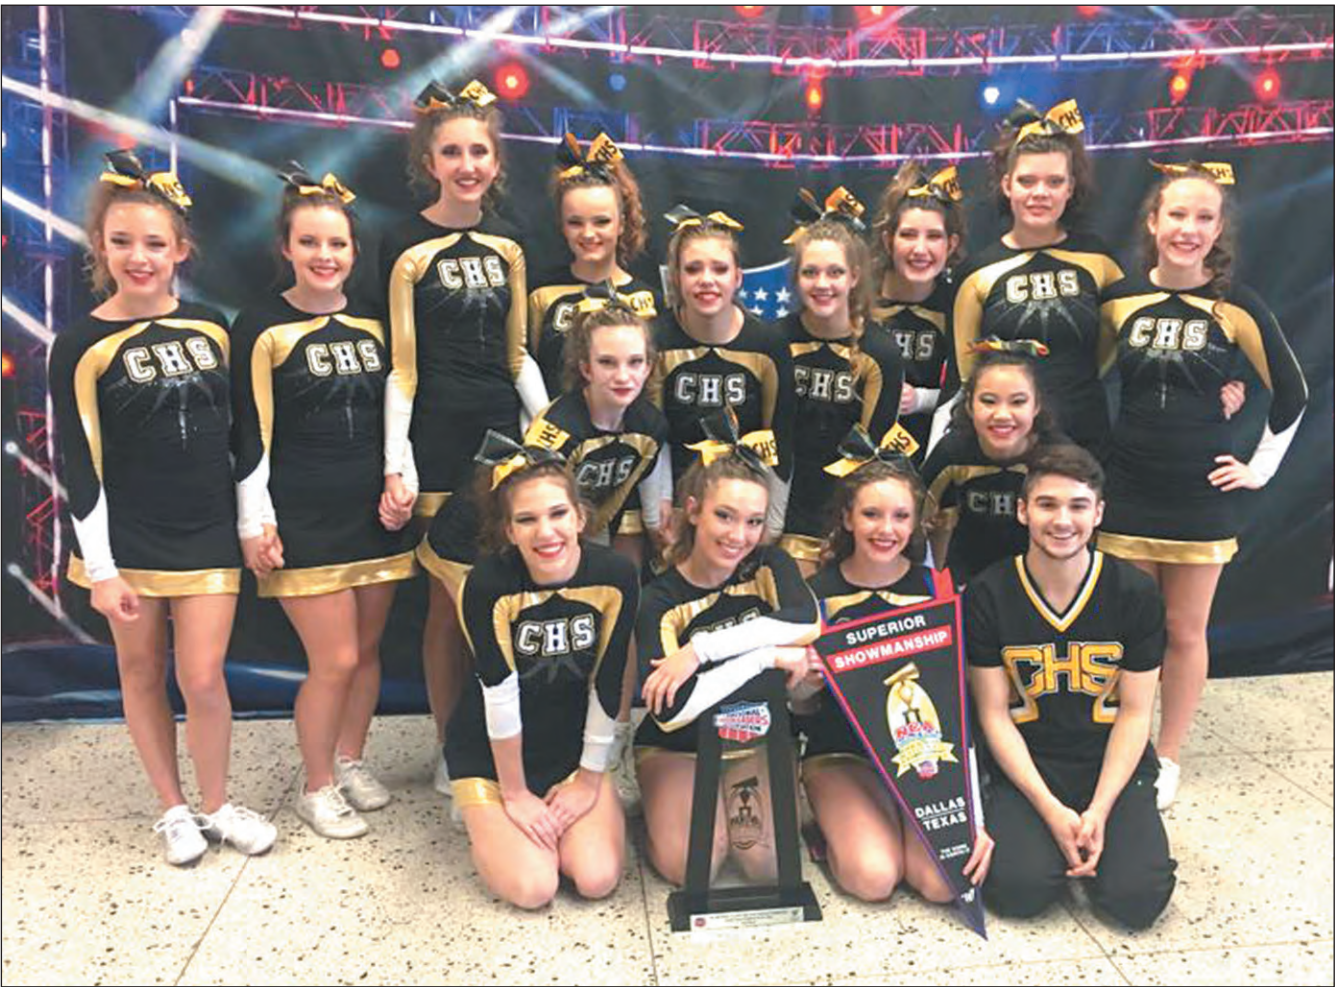

According to the victim's statement, along with a statement by an eyewitness who was present during the assault, England began slamming the victim down on the bed and would not let her up. When the victim went into the living room, England was said to have tried to carry her back into the bedroom, but she would not let him because she feared for her own safety.

England then allegedly took phones away from his girlfriend and the witness and locked the witness out of the house. The victim said he then began punching her in the face and held her arms so hard they began to bleed. She also said he held her by the throat and slapped her.

It was at that point the phone rang and England allegedly told the victim to answer it and to tell them she was fine. When the victim answered, it was 9-1-1 dispatch and she told them her address and to send help.

England was released from the Barry County Jail after posting a $15,000 bond on Tuesday, January 24.

The office of the Presidency has been transferred from President Obama to now President Trump. I'm sure everyone is aware that this was not a strife free transfer or inauguration. Several members of Congress "boycotted" the inauguration. I'm not sure how this benefitted or punished either the members of Congress or the President.

This is just another example of the chaos that accompanies human rules, policies and leadership. If you are seeking a consistent philosophy with guidance that leads to peace rather than chaos: come to Jesus Christ our past, present and future spiritual leader. Build your life, place your confidence in the word of God and you will not find strife and confusion. You will reap peace and understanding: "Be careful for nothing: but in everything by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known unto God. And the peace of God, which passeth all understanding, shall keep your hearts and minds through Christ Jesus." Philippians 4:6-7. Please join us as we follow the never changing leadership of Jesus Christ our Savior and King.

SKITS spring play auditions Feb. 4

SKITS is holding auditions for their April 28, 29 and 30, 2017, Spring Play on Saturday, February 4, at the Central Crossing Senior Center in Shell Knob at 10 a.m. No experience is necessary.

If you have a desire to see what community theater is all about, they encourage you to go to the audition. If you cannot make the audition and would like to schedule an alternate time, call Susan at (417) 858-0621.

The play, "Million Dollar Meatballs" by Todd Wallinger, is a comedy of epicurean proportions. It starts with two bumbling jewel thieves that are on the run from the cops. They duck into Chez Monyeu, a restaurant so bad the mice are their only repeat customers. This deliciously funny farce includes characters named Olive Pitt, Boris Stroganoff, Ginger Snap and Sue Dujour. Couldn't you see yourself playing a smart alec dishwasher, gloomy Russian waiter or a snarky maitre d?

SKITS is in need of adult male and females. Rehearsals are three times a week starting March 6. It may not be necessary for all characters to be there for all rehearsals.

SKITS would like to invite you to part of this wacky, crazy, fun play behind the scenes. They also need stage hands to help with the construction of the stage, painting sets, designing costumes, prop assembly, curtain raising, sound byte implementation, lighting, microphones, ticket takers, support of actors behind the stage at play time, rehearsal readings, stand-ins and people just to share a laugh with as we're always laughing.

This play is produced by special arrangement with Pioneer Drama Service, Inc. Denver, Col.

Purdy teams claim tournament championships

Lee Stubblefield

The Purdy Lady Eagles defeated Spokane, 65-49, on Saturday to claim the championship trophy at the Marionville Tournament. Two counties west, the Purdy boys won a tough battle over Billings, 73-70, to win the Sarcoxie Tournament. It was a big night for the preeminent basketball program in the area.

The Purdy girls improved to 14-1 while mowing down Pleasant Hope, Ash Grove, and Spokane. The 60-34 win over Pleasant Hope was a typical Lady Eagles win. A sleepy first quarter against Ash Grove saw Purdy trailing 9-6 at the first break. But the Lady Eagles rallied to take a 17-16 halftime lead, and then authored an 18-7 third quarter to close that chapter of the tournament.

Th Purdy Eagles won a thrilling 73-70 contest over Billings on Saturday to earn the championship of the Sarcoxie Tournament. Tyler Keeler scored a career-high

39 points to carry Purdy to the finish. The two teams fought to an 18-18 tie at the first break, but then Purdy spurted to a 41-33 halftime lead. Billings won a 16-10 third quarter to pull within 51-49 at the final break before Purdy prevailed after a hot fourth quarter. The Exeter boys claimed a huge upset win at Sarcoxie, downing Wheaton 59-40. Cassville third at Spokane

The Cassville Wildcats defeated Galena, 66-50, on Friday night to win the third-place game of the Spokane Tournament.

During the week of January 22 through 28, communities across the state of Missouri will honor the dedicated service of local boards of education during School Board Recognition Week, as proclaimed by Governor Jay Nixon. The goal is to build awareness and understanding of the important function an elected board of education plays in communities and schools.

“Our community and our students benefit every day from the countless volunteer hours devoted by our Board of Education members,” stated Dr. Richard Asbill, Cassville R-IV School District Superintendent. “They tackle the difficult challenges that come with operating a school district. Their decisions not only affect our students and community today, but create a lasting impact on the future of Cassville Schools. For that, we appreciate them immensely.”

School Board Recognition Week is sponsored by the Missouri School Boards’ Association. MSBA is a private, not-for-profit organization that exists to help school boards succeed.

The Cassville School District is governed by a seven member board that meets monthly. Board of Education members serve a three-year term. Cassville R-IV School District current board members are: David Haddock, Jon Horner, Becky Henningson, Carolyn Bowen, Chad Yarnall, Jeremy Marple and John Sullivan.

When asked about board member service, Becky Henningson explained, “The communities that make up our school district hold a special place in my heart and that is why I do my best to serve our neighbors, friends, parents and grandparents. I know that our school board members have the best interest of our students and teachers at heart and understand that we have been given a responsibility to represent them and our taxpayers and ensure we have the best school district possible.”

MDC releases archery season deer, turkey numbers

Missouri’s 2016-2017 deer-hunting season ended Jan. 15 with the Missouri Department of Conservation (MDC) reporting a preliminary total harvest of 263,832 deer. Top counties for the overall season were Franklin with 5,272 deer harvested, Howell with 5,242, and Texas with 4,608. Hunters harvested 273,249 deer during the 2015-2016 deer hunting seasons.

Deer hunting ended with the close of the archery season. Preliminary data from MDC showed that hunters checked 47,550 deer during the archery season. Top counties for the archery season were Jefferson with 1,118 deer harvested, Wayne with 980, and St. Louis with 979. Archery hunters checked 49,759 deer the previous year.

Fall archery turkey hunting also ended Jan. 15. Preliminary data from MDC showed 2,304 turkeys harvested. Top counties for the fall archery turkey season were St. Clair with 57 birds harvested, Franklin with 51, and Greene with 50. For the previous year, hunters harvested 3,042 turkeys.

The past season was the first in which MDC began allowing crossbows as a legal method during the deer and turkey archery season. Of the 47,550 deer harvested under archery methods, 14,336 were with crossbows. Of the 2,304 turkeys harvested under archery methods, 853 were with crossbows.

Get more deer and turkey harvest data for the current season at short.mdc.mo.gov/Z3g. Get deer harvest data for past seasons at short.mdc.mo.gov/Z3M. Get turkey harvest data for past seasons at short.mdc.mo.gov/Z3Y.

MDC reported four firearms-related hunting incidents during the fall deer and turkey hunting seasons. All were non-fatal. Three involved self-inflicted injuries and one involved the ricochet of a bullet fragment from one hunter into another. In addition, the Department was notified of one tree-stand fall, which was not fatal.

Conservation makes Missouri a great place to hunt deer and turkey. For more information, go online to huntfish.mdc.mo.gov/hunting-trapping.

MDC continues to control feral hogs with landowner help

Missouri Department of Conservation (MDC) wildlife biologists on the feral hog strike team have tallied up numbers for 2016. The year yielded a total of 5,358 feral hogs removed by MDC, partner agencies, and private landowners, which is a significant increase over efforts the previous year. In 2015, 3,649 feral hogs were removed from the landscape.

Some attributing factors in the increase include MDC’s “Report, don’t shoot” message to encouraging trapping, banning hog hunting on conservation areas, and a strong public awareness campaign.

Southeast Missouri trapped 2,941 feral hogs, which is where the highest density of feral hogs occurs. The Ozark region trapped 1,293 while the Southwest region trapped 1,006 hogs. St. Louis, Central and Kansas City regions all trapped fewer than 100 feral hogs each.

Alan Leary, MDC’s Wildlife Management Coordinator and leader of the Department’s feral hog eradication efforts said although the goal is to eradicate feral hogs in the state, a more immediate goal is to keep the feral hog population from spreading to those northern regions.

“We made significant progress in 2016,” said Leary. “The key to eradicating these destructive, invasive pests is cooperation with private landowners and partners in efforts to report hog sightings, continue trapping and deter hog hunting and the illegal release of hogs.”

In 2016, MDC partnered with other conservation groups, agriculture organizations, and the Missouri Conservation Heritage Foundation to provide the state’s feral hog strike team with more trapping equipment for use on both private and public land, and to fund public education efforts on the dangers of feral hogs. MDC increased communication efforts, bolstering an already active feral hog communications campaign with statewide media efforts on agricultural news stations. Through this campaign, the public heard from private landowners who suffered hog damage and are working with MDC and USDA to eradicate feral hogs. They also helped spread the message to “Report, don’t shoot” feral hogs.

“The majority of land in Missouri is privately owned, so it’s crucial that we engage the public, educate them on the dangers of feral hogs and engage them in our trapping efforts,” Leary said. “Through our communications campaign, more landowners are learning more about feral hogs, asking for help and ridding their property of this invasive species.”

Landowners are also learning that it’s much easier to get rid of feral hogs if you trap the whole sounder, rather than allow hunting and only shooting one or two, he said.

While hunting is a very effective tool for managing populations of wildlife, feral hogs are not wildlife and the goal is to remove them. Killing feral hogs for sport hinders efforts to eradicate them for several reasons.

“Some hunters intentionally release feral hogs in new areas to establish populations to hunt and hunters usually only shoot one or two hogs out of the group, while the rest scatter across the landscape and become more difficult to catch,” Leary said. “Hunting actually compounds the problem.”

While trapping is an effective method for eradicating feral hogs, when it comes to the remaining few of a sounder they are difficult to eliminate. Feral hogs are great at noticing details that tip them off to avoid a trapping area. They have coloring that blends into the landscape and hide in thickets and dense cover. Therefore, in the winter when trees are bare, MDC occasionally uses aerial gunning to reach the ultimate goal of removing this elusive, invasive animal from the landscape. Through the combination of these different techniques, MDC’s feral hog team made significant progress in eradicating feral hogs last year.

“It’s vital we continue our efforts and get the feral hog population under control before it spreads any further,” Leary said.

Feral hogs are not wildlife and are a serious threat to fish, forests and wildlife as well as agricultural resources. Economic losses resulting from feral hog damage in the U.S. is estimated at greater than $1.5 billion per year. Feral hogs damage property, agriculture, and natural resources by their aggressive rooting of soil in addition to their trampling and consumption of crops as part of their daily search for food.

Feral hogs have expanded their range in the U.S. from 17 to 38 states over the past 30 years. Their populations grow rapidly because feral hogs can breed any time of year and produce two litters of one to seven piglets every 12 to 15 months. Feral hogs are also known to carry diseases such as swine brucellosis, pseudorabies, trichinosis and leptospirosis, which are a threat to Missouri agriculture and human health.

To report feral hog sightings or damage, go online to mdc.mo.gov/feralhog.
