Thanks to the Department of Public Safety, officers with the Seligman Police Department are spending more time on patrol keeping citizens safe and less in the office doing paperwork.

The Seligman Police Department received five new Dell laptop computers by the Department of Public Safety to use in the cruisers on the streets and at City Hall. The laptops work on a secure server so that all tickets written by the officers are automatically stored and avail-

The department has been using the computers for a few months, and they are already seeing the benefits for its officers. Burgess said, "Efficiency-wise, the computers allow our officers to complete most of the work from the patrol vehicle thus requiring less time in the office."

Prior to installing the laptops in the vehicles and having all of the information stored in their database, it was much more time consuming to complete the necessary paperwork. Officers would issues citations while working on the streets, then enter that information into a Microsoft Word document at City Hall. After that, the paper copies would be stored in physical files in the office, but no digital information would be immediately accessible within the department.

Burgess said that the training to get officers up to speed on the new system was minimal. He stated, "Training basically consisted of familiarization with the software which was very userfriendly."

Since the computers were provided by the Department of Public Safety, the city did not have to invest financially in the equipment or the software making it a win-win for both the department and

Barry County mother fights to educate for the safety of her son

Kaleb Outhouse, 8, suffers from adrenal insufficiency, a disorder that prevents his body from releasing cortisol.

Charlea Mills

For most parents, having their child play basketball or football is an every day normal activity. However, for one Washburn mother, a simple injury could threaten her son's life, and she is fighting to educate others to keep him safe.

Kaleb Outhouse, 8, is the youngest of Alli Gebhardt's eight children, and by the time he was four, she knew something was wrong. "He stopped growing, just like that," Gebhardt shared.

As Gebhardt visited doctors and clinics to try to figure out what was going on with Kaleb's growth, she was told repeatedly that he was just small. She said, "He is the eighth kid, and he was the only one who didn't grow. Genetically, all of the kids are the same, they all have the same mother and father. Something was obviously wrong."

Finally, Gebhardt was referred to an endocrinologist when he was six. After watching Kaleb's lack of growth for a year, the doctor tested him for growth hormone issues. However, when the tests came back, they realized that there was a much bigger issue. Kaleb was diagnosed with adrenal insufficiency, which means his body does not produce

Cortisol is released by the body anytime there is any stress present. So, when someone gets injured, sick or even experiences emotional stress, cortisol is what prevents the person from going into shock. Since Kaleb's body doesn't produce cortisol, a seemingly small event could kill him.

Looking at Kaleb today, he is a normal kid, just small. He loves to ride his bike, plays baseball and gets into a bit of trouble, just like any kid. However, it takes a daily routine and an emergency plan to make sure that the rough and tumble ways don't lead to a major crisis.

After discovering the cortisol issue, Gebhardt's world changed. Kaleb started on twice-a-day steroids, a larger dose in the mornings and a smaller dose before bed, and a daily growth hormone to help him grow. Since going on the growth hormones, Kaleb's gone up one clothing size, and at eight, he is in a Unfortunately, with Kaleb's condition, there is no cure. Instead, he has to manage the issue by preventing stress, taking steroids and keeping an emergency steroid injection in case he starts to go into shock.

Gebhardt said, "One time, Kaleb was stung by a wasp. He turned white as a sheet and started shaking. He was going into shock.' Fears like that are a part of Gebhardt's everyday life.

She said, "It's hard because there are certain things that are just too risky for him to do. We haven't done basketball, but we do baseball with him wearing the full helmet and face mask to protect him. It's just something most people don't think about."

Now that Kaleb has an official diagnosis, the family knows how to manage it, but additional complications come with people being unaware of how to recognize when Kaleb is in distress and knowing how to give his lifesaving injections.

Gebhardt said, "When Kaleb was diagnosed, the nurse at the school took the initiative to learn more about it. So the nurse at Southwest has the medicine and knows how to give the injection, but if she isn't there, there's no one there who can give it to him. When I've asked if other teachers or staff would learn how to give it to him, everyone seems to be afraid."

Part of that is due to HIP-PA regulations that prevent medical information from being widely spread due to patient confidentiality. Gebhardt said, "I told the school, give me any waiver to sign. I want you to talk about Kaleb. I want you to know what he has and what to do if he goes into crisis."

Gebhardt went on, "I get it, needles are scary. I don't want to give it to him either, but it could save his life."

Other factors weigh on Gebhardt's mind, too. For instance, the South Barry County Ambulance District does not keep his particular medication on board the ambulances. Gebhardt said, "They told me they would give him fluids because they don't carry his medication. I'm trying to talk to them about getting it approved to have that on the ambulance, too. If he has a crisis, he needs this medicine. If he doesn't receive it, the potential for death is very high."

She said, "I work an hour away. I just want to know that if something happens, he will be safe."

There is no way of knowing for sure why Kaleb cannot produce cortisol or growth hormones. Gebhardt said, "He took inhaled steroids for his asthma for four years, so it could have caused it or saved him. We don't know. The endocrinologist doesn't know."

With all of the risk for Kaleb, Gebhardt is doing everything she can to educate those around her to help Kaleb if he needs it. She said, "I teach my other kids to know how to give the injection and what to look for. However, I'm also getting together a group of people from the community to learn how to give his medicine if he needs it."

Finally, Gebhardt said, "I don't want people to treat him like a china doll, but I want people to be aware and know what to do if something happens."

If you are interested in knowing more about adrenal insufficiency or would like to be trained on how to give the injection in case of an emergency, contact Gebhardt at alliforlife@yahoo.

The family of Charles Curry would like to thank everyone for each expression of sympathy, the abundance of food and prayers. We would especially like to than Jim Fohn and his staff for their skillful, compassionate care, Pastors Tony Ball and Paul Yarnall for their words of comfort, and Bob Shupp for the wonderful piano playing with Rita Stringer and Gary Ball singing Charles' favorite hymns. We also appreciate the excellent meal provided by the Roaring River Baptist Church, as well as the kindness shown to us by the Cassville Police Dept. and ambulance service. Charla's friends, Glenda Maddux, Mary Lyall, Patsy Baker, Mary Terry, Jane Divine, Sharon Tate, Kay Walker, Larry and Lonna Edens, were invaluable during the early hours of shock and preparations.

Obituaries

BETTY JEAN MCCRARY

Jean McCrary Betty passed away peacefully, surrounded by her family at the K.C. Hospice House on May 27, 2015 at the age of 91.

Betty was preceded in death by her husband of 55 years, William S. McCrary; Mayhugh and adoptive parents John and Clara Roberts.

Betty is lovingly remembered by her children Glen McCrary and wife, Sondra of Belton, her daughter, Tracee Dock and partner, Paul Snare, of Kansas City; and her Crary and Darla's daughter, Larina of Winchester, Va.; her grandchildren, Stephen, Kevin and Elizabeth, all Mc-Crarys, Aubree (Adam) Keck and Lauren Dock; greatgrandchildren, Tyler, Will and Emily, all McCrary, Brendan Killian, Allison Dock, and Theodore Keck; Niece Lonna Mayhugh (Mike) Smittle.

Betty was born in Kansas City, on February 11, 1924. She graduated from Harrisonville High in Harrisonville, in 1941, and immediately married the love of her life William (Bill) McCrary. Bill served in the U.S. Army during WWII and Betty accompanied him to California where she lived and worked with other military wives while the "boys" were overseas. Betty and Bill returned to live in Kansas City until 1976, when they retired to the beautiful Ozark hills in Cassville. Betty moved to Belton, CLAYTON VICKERS, JR.

Betty loved and excelled at her role as a mother and a homemaker. She also enjoyed helping her neighbors and friends, sewing, reading and 1940's vintage music. Other favorite things included watching Wheel of Fortune, bird watching, walking with her Cassville friends and her daily luncheons with her new Carnegie Village friends.

Betty's family and friends will remember her for her compassionate and caring personality. She cared about what was important to others and could always see the good in everyone she met. She always seemed to know when a eldest son, John S. McCrary; loved one would benefit from sisters, Hilda Saljoin, Rhea a warm smile, a gentle touch or a loving hug.

As we celebrate our time with Betty she would ask only that we share her optimistic outlook on life and remember her very favorite saying, "Life

Simplify vacations and savor the fun

Vacations are a great opportunity for families or individuals to recharge. But especially active vacationers often return from their trips in need of rest, as planning may have taken its toll or schedules loaded with too many activities might have left little time for R&R. Those willing to simplify their vacations may find their excursions provide the rest they need and the energizing boost they can make use of upon returning from their destinations.

Leave work behind

The United States is one of the few countries that does not guarantee paid days off. The Center for Economic and Policy Research says one in four working Americans do not get paid time off. The employment site Glassdoor notes that among those who do get paid vacations, 75 percent of employees chose not to use all of their time in 2013. By comparison, Canadians get an average of 19 days of vacation time per year. Stress about making up work or falling behind makes some professionals worry about using their vacation time, and those who do travel may stay connected to the office in some shape or form. Splitting time between leisure and work responsibilities on a vacation can be taxing and take away from the time you need to relax and recharge. Cut work ties and immerse yourself in the vacation experience.

Use a travel agent

Using a travel agent to plan your vacation can remove any stress and anxiety you may feel when planning a trip and juggling the responsibilities of everyday life. Many people choose to book their own trips as a cost-cutting measure. What they don't realize is that travel agents may be privy to special deals and perks they can pass on to customers. These agents also know the ins and outs of certain resorts and locales. Leaving the legwork in their accomplished hands means all you have to do is show up with your reservations instead of pouring over the minutiae of planning.

Consider an all-inclusive trip

All-inclusive resorts and cruise lines take the work out of having a good time. These types of vacations remove a lot of the problems associated with personal travel. Meals are provided, activities are coordinated, and you don't have to carry extra cash, as most costs generally are covered.

Keep your itinerary

Scheduling right down to the minute can remove the fun of the trip. Leave opportunities to just sit and enjoy your surroundings. Perhaps other members of the family or traveling party have their own ideas for entertainment. A rigid timeline can make the vacation seem more like a commitment rather than an opportunity to let loose and stop watching the clock.

Rent a car

Find out if a rental car can be included in the price of your vacation. Having a car at the ready means vacationers can come and go as they please without worrying about hailing taxis or waiting for public transportation. Rental cars also provide access to areas outside of resort confines. Research possible destinations in advance and map out where you want to go to remain safe and prepared.

Vacations don't have to be taxing. Cut down on some of the stressful aspects of traveling by simplifying and delegating tasks.

Barry County Health Department May Food Service Report

The Health Department ate School Cassville divides food service code violations into two categories: Priority and Core Priority items are more likely than other violations to contribute to food contamination, or illness and/ or injury.

Core items, although important to the overall hygiene of the establishment, do not necessarily present an immediate threat to food contamination or illness and/or injury.

A report for each establishment that is inspected shows the number of priority items, along with a short statement as to the nature of the violations. The report also shows the number of core items, but doesn't list the nature of those vio-

Cassville's Hill 13th at State

Lee Stubblefield

While Cassville's Satchell Hill fell short in his quest for a medal at the MSHSAA Track and Field Championships, the 2015 meet was a memorable one in many ways. Hill finished 13th in the Class 3 Boys Shot on Saturday with a toss of 43-10.25.

A flurry of unprecedented performances highlighted this meet, including new overall records in both the boys and girls pole vault. On Friday, Christopher Nilsen, of Park Hill, became the first Missouri high school vaulter to clear 17 feet. Then, on Saturday, Lee's Summit West's Nicole Kallenberger became Missouri's best female vaulter ever, clearing the bar at 12-10.5.

Hannah Long, of Eureka, capped her high school career with a national-best 4:40.15, shattering the Missouri overall record by over four seconds.

HILL

Eldon senior Sara Rhine was an inch short of her own class record in the Class 3 girls high jump on Friday, but her 5-6 was good enough to win her fourth gold medal in the event.

Finally, in the Class 5 boys 3200 meter run, a trio of runners from Lafayette claimed the top three places for an unheard of sweep in that distance event. Austin Hindman won in 9:11.34, followed closely by teammates Devin Myrer (9:15.12) and Alec Haines (9:19.85).

CMU athletic honors

TIM'S TROUT TIPS

The water is murky and still kind of high and it is dropping everyday. We did not flood and all of the campgrounds are fine.

With the murky water, you can use 2 lb. line and do fine, but you can use 4 lb. and do good right now.

I expect the water to drop everyday for a while. We are expecting about seven days of dry weather, that should really help.

Fishing has been rather good with a fly rod but not much dry fly fishing right now. Nymphing, woolybuggers, glo-balls, san juan worms, mega worms and chamois worms are working great in the higher murky water, but you'll need to add a bit of extra weight here and there. You'll have to look at each pool and decide, how much weight you'll need.

Spinners are still working well, let 'em sink down close to the bottom, and reel them back just fast enough to make the blade spin; dark colors seem to be working the best.

Gold spoons are pretty good. Fish 'em deep and reel them back very slow. Lots of nice trout are caught on spoons when the water is like

Some nice trout are being caught on crankbaits. The three inch and smaller minnow patterns are usually the best choice, and the rebel crawfish is always a good choice.

Larger jigs are working well; 1/32- 1/8 are good right

Power bait is really good in this murky water. Eggs and worms are both good, cheese yellow, white, flo. yellow and flo. orange have all been working very well, just remember to use extra weight.

Good luck on the river this week.

USDA offers socially-disadvantaged grants

Missouri Rural Development State Director Janie Dunning has announced that the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) is now accepting applications to provide technical assistance to socially-disadvantaged groups in rural areas. Funding will be made available through USDA's Socially-Disadvantaged Groups Grant Program (formerly the Small, Socially-Disadvantaged Producer Grant Program).

"These grants will help socially-disadvantaged business owners develop the tools and skills they need to grow their enterprises and succeed at creating jobs and expanding economic opportunities in rural areas," Vilsack said. "American agriculture is becoming increasingly diverse in many ways, with more minorities and women seeking to enter the field, as well as greater diversity in the age of farmers, the size of operations, in production methods, and in the types of crops being grown. All of these forms of diversity help strengthen U.S. agriculture for the future."

The Socially-Disadvantaged Groups Grant Program assists organizations that provide technical assistance to socially-disadvantaged groups in rural areas. Examples of technical assistance are conducting feasibility studies, developing business and strategic plans, and providing leadership training.

"Missouri's rural areas are home to some varied and distinct populations. Some of these populations, as a result of cultural or language barriers, experience difficulties in creating and sustaining businesses, Ms. Dunning said. "The Socially-Disadvantaged Groups Grant Program is in place to alleviate the difficulties faced by individuals who want to engage in the economic life of rural areas. disadvantaged Assisting rural residents succeed is crucial to the strength and vitality of communities."

USDA plans to make up to $3 million in grants available. The maximum award under this notice is $175,000. More information on how to apply can be found on page 28937 of the May 20 Federal Register. Applications submitted by mail must be postmarked by July 20, 2015. Electronic applications must be submitted at www.grants.gov no later than midnight Eastern Time July 14, 2015.

Eligible applicants include groups of cooperatives, cooperative development centers and individual cooperatives that serve socially-disadvantaged groups. The cooperatives or centers can be located in any area, but the groups assisted must be located in an eligible rural area. Also, the majority of the governing body of the organization must be compromised of individuals who are members of socially-disadvantaged groups.

USDA Rural Development is encouraging applications for projects in census tracts with poverty rates of 20 percent or higher. All grants are awarded through a national competition.

The program is making a difference in many rural areas. The program has provided technical assistance to help refugee immigrant and minority farmers improve their productive capacity, increase revenue, and strengthen their ability to govern and manage their cooperative businesses. Many of the farmers benefiting from the project had little or no access to formal schooling and had been persecuted and oppressed for years in their native land. Farmers have learned how to manage marketing channels themselves and have gained new clients. They have also increased the level of cooperation among Hispanic, Korean and African farmer groups. These groups are working toward merging their efforts to form a single cooperative. The technical assistance provided enabled

Central Crossing Senior Center honors veterans

On Friday, May 22, it was a great day for a picnic and celebration. The Central Crossing Senior Center picked that day to honor those to whom everyone owes the freedom we enjoy every day, veterans, both living and those who have passed on.

Nearly 100 participants took part in the celebration. OJ Thompson, former CCSC administrator, cooked hot dogs and hamburgers on the grill; Bob Lea brought in his ice cream for everyone to enjoy after the meal. Special music and entertainment was provided by George Meisner and a beautiful invocation was led by Jerry Arnold.

All attending veterans were also given special recognition and treated to a free meal. The ceremony concluded solemnly as Taps was played.

Sara Paterson, the current CCSC administrator, put together the veterans celebration.

USDA offers low-interest home loans Auxiliary purchases vacuums for Mercy

The U.S. Department of Agriculture Rural Development has announced a decrease in the home mortgage interest rate for its Single Family Housing Direct Home Loan program. "The low interest rate makes it a great time for eligible families to purchase a home through the direct loan program," said Madeleine Watson, Area Technician at the Neosho office.

Effective May 1, 2015, the interest rate is only 3.125% for home mortgages. Under this program, homeownership opportunities featuring no down payment, fixed rate mortgages with 33 year loan terms are available to eligible applicants. To be eligible for a Direct Home Loan, applicants must have an acceptable credit history, meet income guidelines for the county they wish to live in, and demonstrate repayment ability for the home they wish to purchase. Homes must meet federal, state, and local building codes and applicants must also obtain a thirdparty home inspection. Those interested in the program are encouraged to contact the USDA Rural Development office for specifics on eligibility

Further information on this program and other Rural Development programs is available by visiting USDA Rural Development's web site at http://www.rd.usda.gov/mo or by contacting Madeleine Watson or Vicky Hubbard at the Neosho Rural Development office, 1900 S. Bus. Hwy 71, Neosho, MO 64850; by phone at (417) 451-1007, Ext. 4; or by email at madeleine.watson@ mo.usda.gov.

President Obama's plan for rural America has brought about historic investment and resulted in stronger rural communities. Under the President's leadership, these investments in housing, community facilities, businesses and infrastructure have empowered rural America to continue leading the way - strengthening America's economy, small towns and rural communities.

USDA's investments in rural communities support the rural way of life that stands as the backbone of American values. President Obama and Agriculture Secretary Vilsack are committed to a smarter use of federal resources to foster sustainable economic prosperity and ensure the government is a strong partner for businesses, entrepreneurs and working families in rural communities.

The Mercy Hospital Auxiliary recently donated two Shark Navigator Cordless Vacuums to the Environmental Services Department at Mercy Hospital Cassville. Funds were raised throughout the year and donated to purchase the vacuums for housekeepers to use in high-traffic patient areas where cords could be a trip hazard. The Auxiliary is funded through the Gift Shop at the hospital as well as hosting many fundraisers during the year.

If interested in becoming a member of the Mercy Hospital Auxiliary, please contact Emily Jackson at (417) 847-1451.

Barry County Courts send six to prison in the month of May

• Jesus Baidon, 25, of Monett, pled guilty to trespassing in the first degree. Baidon was sentenced to 10 days in jail with credit for time already served.

While on a separate call on August 11, 2014, officers with the Monett Police Department encountered Baidon walking with an open container of vodka. When placed under arrest, Baidon attempted to kick out windows of the police car and also assaulted officers as he was taken to jail.

• Cam Ray Banks, 45, pled guilty to resisting arrest. Banks was sentenced to three years incarceration with the Department of Corrections.

On May 4, 2014, officers with the Monett Police Department observed Banks walking at night in an area where there had been recent break-ins. When they tried to make contact with him, they noticed a screw driver sticking out of his pocket which he tried to grab.

Banks then gave a false name to the officers, someone who had a totally different physical description than Banks. When Banks heard that he did not match the description of the person who's name he gave, he ran from officers. Banks had to be ordered down at gunpoint after officers chased him approximately 2/10 mile. Banks had felony warrants out in Lawrence and Johnson Counties.
