Intense flooding causes damage throughout the county

Charlea Mills

Heavy amounts of rain-fall all over Barry County and surrounding areas caused intense flooding that posed a danger for citizens.

Reports from around the county estimate the rain total for Tuesday at around six inches. By Tuesday morning, the National Weather Service had announced flash flood warnings for the county that lasted most of the day. By Tuesday afternoon, the Missouri Department of Transportation had issued a statement that more heavy rain was forecasted for Tuesday night and that many roads would probably flood again by the morning.

Flood waters caused many roads and bridges all over the county to be impassable by traffic, and there were reports of vehicles being swept off of the roadways when drivers attempted to pass through rushing waters. The Barry County Sheriff's Department announced just before noon that Cassville was closed and advised people not to come to the city via their Facebook page.

As streets reopened, The Sheriff's Department continued to update citizens and even issued requests. One Facebook post asked drivers to stay home unless completely necessary because people looking at the flood waters were obstructing law enforcement and responders helping people stuck from the flood.

In Cassville, rising water rushed over bridges, roadways and caused many businesses to close. Emergency workers were out rescuing people, including the Sheriff's Department using their Hummer to pass through treacherous areas.

MoDOT issued the following advice regarding flooded roadways:

- Never drive through moving or standing water.

- Looks can be deceiving. With rapidly moving water in a flash flood, roads can be washed away just under the surface of the moving water.

- It also takes just a small amount of water to wash a vehicle off a road into a creek.

- Never drive around barricades.

- Monitor forecasts and check road conditions frequently.

Moerer pleads guilty to Rte. W crash that killed three

Charlea Mills

A Fairview woman pled guilty to causing the wreck that killed four people in the fall of 2013.

Jennifer Moerer, 35, was charged for her involvement in a four-car pile up on Route W near George's on October 23, 2013. Moerer pled guilty to three counts of involuntary manslaughter in the second degree on June 17 and was sentenced to three years incarceration with the Department of Corrections.

The crash occurred around 6:30 a.m. on a Wednesday. According to the affidavit of probable cause completed by Trooper John Lueckenhoff, Moerer tried to pass another vehicle when her view of oncoming traffic was obstructed by a hillside. Moerer was travelling in speeds excess of 72 miles per hour and caused a four-car chain reaction.

Lukas and Amanda Walker and Antonio Luna were all killed as a result of the wreck and two others, Suzanne Morin and George Luna Nunez were all seriously injured. At the time of the crash, Moerer's child was also in the car, but only received minor injuries.

During Trooper Lueckenhoff's investigation, he discovered that Moerer had a pattern of reckless driving at high rates of speed. Two people indicated that she had passed them at excessive speeds shortly before the crash that killed three. According to the report, Lueckenhoff said, "Moerer recklessly operated her vehicle utterly unconcerned with the consequences of her actions. Ms. Moerer had a gross lack of carefulness and a conscious disregard of the risk to herself and others as she overtook a vehicle."

Moerer was charged and arrested on February 13, 2014.

Debris piled up at the bridge at Roaring River State Park following flooding Tuesday morning.

Seligman PD selects full time officer

Charlea Mills

Seligman Police Chief Terry Burgess announced that the city has selected a full-time officer for the department.

Officer Aaron Kaiser is full-time for the department at 45 hours a week. Kaiser began as a reserve for Seligman in December. A part-time officer will be chosen at a later date to take on the additional 30 hours each week.

Burgess said that the city has seven day and night coverage each week on a flex schedule so that officers can cover all times during peak times of crime.

The Seligman City Council opted to hire on a full-time officer and one part-time officer instead of the three part-time officer, because the department was having difficulty finding officers willing to work only part-time. By transitioning to the current system, Burgess hopes to have reliable officers with all hours needed filled.

Simplify your vacation

Vacations are a great opportunity for families or individuals to recharge. But especially active vacationers often return from their trips in need of rest, as planning may have taken its toll or schedules loaded with too many activities might have left little time for R&R. Those willing to simplify their vacations may find their excursions provide the rest they need and the energizing boost they can make use of upon returning from their destinations.

Leave work behind
The United States is one of the few countries that does not guarantee paid days off. The Center for Economic and Policy Research says one in four working Americans do not get paid time off. The employment site Glassdoor notes that among those who do get paid vacations, 75 percent of employees chose not to use all of their time in 2013. By comparison, Canadians get an average of 19 days of vacation time per year. Stress about making up work or falling behind makes some professionals worry about using their vacation time, and those who do travel may stay connected to the office in some shape or form. Splitting time between leisure and work responsibilities on a vacation can be taxing and take away from the time you need to relax and recharge. Cut work ties and immerse yourself in the vacation experience.

Use a travel agent
Using a travel agent to plan your vacation can remove any stress and anxiety you may feel when planning a trip and juggling the responsibilities of everyday life. Many people choose to book their own trips as a cost-cutting measure. What they don't realize is that travel agents may be privy to special deals and perks they can pass on to customers. These agents also know the ins and outs of certain resorts and locales. Leaving the legwork in their accomplished hands means all you have to do is show up with your reservations instead of pouring over the minutiae of planning.

Consider an all-inclusive trip

All-inclusive resorts and cruise lines take the work out of having a good time. These types of vacations remove a lot of the problems associated with personal travel. Meals are provided, activities are coordinated, and you don't have to carry extra cash, as most costs generally are covered.

Keep your itinerary flexible

Scheduling right down to the minute can remove the fun of the trip. Leave opportunities to just sit and enjoy your surroundings. Perhaps other members of the family or traveling party have their own ideas for entertainment. A rigid timeline can make the vacation seem more like a commitment rather than an opportunity to let loose and stop watching the clock.

Vacations don't have to be taxing. Cut down on some of the stressful aspects of traveling by simplifying and delegating tasks.

How to arrange the best outdoor wedding photos

Photography preferences differ from couple to couple, but when weather permits, many brides and grooms prefer to take photos outdoors. Mother Nature can provide some awe-inspiring backdrops, and such beauty comes at no extra cost.

Photography is a great way for couples to capture all the special moments that occur on their wedding days. Long after the final piece of wedding cake has been consumed, wedding albums remain to remind couples of all those moments that made their big day so special.

vance of the big day to scout areas that can produce great photos. Scouting and preparation can involve seeing the landscape, examining the way the light shines on photo subjects and getting an accurate light reading on a meter to adjust flash accordingly. Photographers also will need to ensure there are no obstructions that will appear in the background of the photos.

It's also important for photographers to select locations that have shade. This way they can adjust the amount of light needed, rather than having to contend with the photo washing out from too much sunlight.

There's much a photographer can do in production to fine-tune photos, but the couple can help things along. Bring along some powder or makeup to touch up between photos. Warm weather can cause shininess or beads of sweat on the skin. A light dusting of powder can tame shine, while any remaining moisture can be blotted away with a towel.

Although brides and grooms may think clouds on their wedding days are a harbinger of bad luck, overcast conditions can actually contribute to better photos. A healthy blanket of cloud cover can produce richer colors and pleasing shadows, making photos even more appealing. If the clouds are just passing, photographers may wait until a cloud passes over the sun to provide just the right amount of light filter.

Couples may want to change into comfortable footwear as they traverse the landscape to get into perfect portraiture locations. This will help keep their fancier shoes clean, and photos can be cropped to hide feet.

Bring along some refreshments when posing for photos, as it can be tiring. Couples can take frequent breaks as the photographer adjusts his or her camera for the next shot. Staying hydrated will keep skin looking supple and ensure that everyone feels refreshed when it's time to return to the party.

Not every family member will be able to join the happy couple for outdoor photos. Elderly relatives or those who have mobility issues may find it difficult to stand in the sun or make their way across certain landscapes. Arrange for indoor photoshoots with guests who can't handle the outdoors.

Notable events that occurred in July 1913

The world is vastly different today than it was just 10 years ago. The advent of social media has changed the way we live our lives. But as much as the world has evolved since 2003, those changes pale in comparison to the changes made since July of 1913. The following are some of the more notable events that occurred 100 years ago this month.

July 1: Surviving Civil War veterans from both sides gather in Pennsylvania to commemorate the fiftieth anniversary of the Battle of Gettysburg.

July 4: American Maurice McLoughlin fails in his bid to become the first foreigner to win the Wimbledon finals, losing in straight sets to Tony Wilding.

July 7: Gregorio Cortez, a Mexican-American outlaw and folk hero, is freed from the Texas State Penitentiary following a governmental pardon.

July 14: With the help of the President and Congressional leaders, management and labor settle their differences to avoid a nationwide strike of railroad employees.

July 21: Nellie Hall, a British advocate for women's suffrage, throws a brick through the window of Prime Minister Herbert Asquith's automobile, in which he is being chauffeured on a visit to Birmingham.

* July 23: "Buffalo Bill" Cody sells the assets of his Buffalo Bill's Wild West show, which had been in operation for 30 years.

* July 28: The sensational trial of Jewish factory manager Leo Frank, accused of murdering factory worker Mary Phagan, begins in Atlanta.

Participation in county fairs offers huge benefits

According to a recent article in the Journal of Extension, the greatest motivator for participating in a county fair, is “having fun.” However, Jeremy Elliot-Engel, 4-H youth development specialist with University of Missouri Extension, says participating in a county fair is much more.

“Youth who participate in a fair also learn independence receive feedback, mastery and gain positive relationships with caring adults,” said Elliot-Engel.

The county fair experience allows youth to balance their desire to have fun with the responsibilities of preparing and caring for livestock for exhibition all under a time structure.

“It is an opportunity for youth to learn how to balance their responsibilities with their desire to have fun. Youth that go to fair with livestock projects learn how to handle the world,” said Elliot-Engel. “They have deadlines, like show times, that they need to meet. Their efforts are linked to their success with ribbons and placing). Moreover, they sometimes learn the world is not always fair depending on the judge that day. These experiences all build independence.”

Throughout the year, 4-H youth are working on projects in all project areas (not just livestock). A county fair provides an opportunity for each young person to get feedback on their project.

“County Fair competition is not about who wins grand champion, or who gets a blue ribbon; it is about learning about how your effort and skill has paid off,” said Elliot-Engel.

A county fair also provides an opportunity to demonstrate mastery. A youth starting out may not know how to prepare their animal for the show ring, and will ask another 4-H youth. This mentoring is innate to 4-H, and each year youth will return, growing and learning the skills necessary to have a successful project. Eventu-

Cassville Alumni Association holds banquet

The annual Cassville Alumni Association banquet was held on Saturday, May 23. President Kay Baker, vice president Jill LeCompte and secretary and treasurer Trish Fordyce were the 2015 officers. There were 88 paid attendees. The meal was prepared and served by John Sullivan. Everyone played Cassville Schools trivia games and reminisced.

Next year’s banquet will be held on Saturday, May 28, at Cassville High School. Those classes celebrating a reunion can contact Jill LeCompte at (417) 847-2221 to reserve tables for the banquet.

ally, they will be in the role as a mentor, rather than the mentee.

“When youth are asked to share their information, this is when they feel they have reached a level of mastery. When they know enough to be able to give back to their community, peers, and the younger youth that is a level of mastery,” said Elliot-Engel.

Of course, there is no fun, mentoring or feedback unless there are also volunteers and parents helping everyone be successful. It should be no surprise that it takes caring adults to volunteer to make a fair happen and help youth gain important life skills from the fair experience.

“This year at the fair, when we are all hot, sweaty and tired, keep in mind that we are there for more than fun. We stay because of the many benefits our young people receive that will last far longer than any placing, ribbon or check,” said Elliot-Engel.

Missouri 4-H is University of Missouri Extension’s youth development program. The 4-H program helps to create opportunities for young people to be valued, contributing members of their community. To learn how to get involved locally go to <http://mo4h.missouri.edu>.

Yia Yang awarded MU Scholarship

Yia Yang, of Rocky Comfort, has been awarded the Elyzabeth H. Schell Scholarship Fund from the University of Missouri College of Agriculture, Food and Natural Resources for the 2015-2016 academic year.

“Scholarships enable us to recruit and retain outstanding students to our college,” said Bryan Garton, associate dean of academic programs.

Yang, a sophomore majoring in plant sciences, is the son of Toua Yang and Chao Yang.

The Elyzabeth Schell Scholarship was established in 1981 by the estate of Elyzabeth Schell. The Schells were in the dairy business in the Kansas City area and had a strong interest in agriculture. Scholarships are awarded to students whose parents are Missouri landowning farmers or ranchers.

“As the cost of earning a college degree continues to increase, it is rare to find a student who does not need financial assistance,” Garton said. “Our goal over the next 10 years is to increase the amount of scholarship funding from approximately $1 million to $1.5 million.”

Information on scholarships and the college is available from Garton at (573) 882-0089 or from high school counselors.

C&C Country Store celebrates 10 years

Shania Stumpf

When two lifelong friends both became tired from jobs they had been at for 30 years, opening a quaint grocery store and restaurant together with the best deli and burgers around was just the change they needed. Cheryl Lee, of Exeter, and Calla Bacon, of Cassville, bought what is now called the C&C Country Store in Exeter.

The building they purchased had been used for a grocery store since 1880. It is the oldest grocery store in Barry County.

The building burned down in 1927 but was built back in 1928 in the same location.

Lee and Bacon made several changes to the store, like adding a new walk-in cooler and running new wiring and plumbing.

Lee and Bacon bought the store in 2004, spent nine months cleaning and getting prepared, then opened in 2005. Both Lee and Bacon said that they are still surprised at how hectic and busy the store is, and they are thankful for that.

When they first opened all they served was a lunch special. Though they still do that, they also serve breakfast. C&C has many regular customer and serve approximately 30 to 40 customers each morning.

Their lunch specials vary from day to day. Lasagna, enchiladas, and ham and beans are just a few things you can expect when going to enjoy the warm sit-down meals.

People from miles around come to the C&C Country Store just to get some meats and cheeses from the deli. They have a variety of options to choose from, but their Party Time Ham is a local favorite.

Along with all the other things they do, C&C also provides catering. They cater to the Cassville School Board every three months and occasionally will cater some weddings. Lee said, "We can pretty much made anything somebody asks for."

Lee and Bacon take shifts to do all the cooking for the meals being served day to day, and they do it all on a four burner stove.

Even though Lee and Bacon do all the cooking, they aren't short handed in other parts of the store. Evelyn Brattin, Susan Fields, Haley Fields and Joe Baxley all work at the C&C Country Store.

On July 15, C&C Country Store is going to celebrate their ten year anniversary with a delicious lunch special and a drawing for chances to win a couple of door prizes.

The C&C Country Store is open from 6 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday, 7 a.m. to 3:30 a.m. on Saturday, and are closed on Sunday. They are located at 104 Front Street in Exeter.

Next time you are in the small town of Exeter, don't forget to stop in a see what's cooking for the hot lunch special.

Race Report: The Hannibal Cannibal

Lee Stubblefield

"You think you're good? You think you're tough? Come try our course...IT'LL EAT YOU UP!" says the opening line of the flyer for the Hannibal Cannibal road races. The Cannibal features 5K, 10K, and 15K distances, with all races including a trip up the near-vertical climb to Lover's Leap to begin the final mile.

2015 marks the 20th anniversary of the Cannibal races. Held in conjunction with the National Tom Sawyer Days, the event is sponsored by Hannibal Regional Hospital around the July 4 holiday. All proceeds of the 2015 Hannibal Cannibal benefit the Hannibal Regional Hospital Foundation's Legacy Campaign.

This is one of those small-town Americana events that should be on every Missourian's bucket list. Over 2,000 runners and walkers flock to the historic Mississippi River town every summer to mingle with the tourist herd, pose by the Tom and Huck statue downtown, and tackle "the hill."

The quarter-mile climb up to the Lover's Leap overlook helped earn the Cannibal a line in Runnersworld's list of toughest road race courses in the United States. But a quick study of the course reveals a troubling fact. It's not just THE hill that makes this course a killer, it's the combination of the famous climb plus the roller-coaster journey on the highway along the river.

Besides the timing mat at the start/finish line, there is also a mat at the peak of Lover's Leap, and your race times are shown as "total," "ascent" and "descent." Walk up the hill and you inflate your overall time. Expend too much energy fighting the incline and you have nothing left for the final mile. There is a fine line between success and disaster.

Except for the half mile from the start/finish line to the viaduct, there are no flat stretches on the 5K and 10K routes. The 15K has a double loop through the Mark Twain campground to add the extra distance and that section is virtually flat. Based on that info alone, I elected to tackle the 15K.

Josie has been struggling with IT band issues, and decided to tackle the 5K course. Way behind on training, she spent as much time as possible running up Wildwood hill to prepare for the Cannibal.

I wasn't overly concerned, with the hill as I have been training on hills for a lifetime. From my high school days in Fayetteville to the last decade in Cassville, hill running has remained a staple of my distance training. I have survived the Eliminator 5K with the half mile climb from Lake Atalanta in Rogers, AR and the run up Easley Hill at the halfway point of the Heart of America Marathon in Columbia, MO. How much harder could this be?

The Race

The highway hills were tougher than expected, and the Lover's Leap climb proved to be nearly impossible for even the veteran runners. John Boyd, 27, of St. Genevieve won the 15K race with an awesome 53:31. Calla Lovell, 25, of Overland Park, Kans., was the women's 15K champion, finishing 11th overall in 1:06:36.

Bryson Jarman, 25 and a

Hannibal resident, won the 10K race in 33:52. Jacqueline Sommer, 31, of O'Fallon, IL was the women's 10K champion, running 44:52.

The 5K race saw 21-year old Colin Cernik blitzing the hills for a win in 17:05. Carly Garnett, 16, a high school ace from Carthage, IL, won the women's 5K in 21:15.

Reflections

I ran better than expected after not racing for over a month, finished 21st overall, and won the 55-59 age group in 1:09:53. I was reduced to a power walk by the summit of Lover's Leap, but recovered to run the final mile in 6:40. I broke out a new red, white, and blue dazzle singlet in honor of the holiday and may wear it out soon if its luck continues.

Josie placed 5th in her age group in the 5K, and was happy to be off the hilly course. She expressed no desire to return for another shot at "the hill".

The Good

This was a well organized event. The 2015 races marked the 20th anniversary of the Cannibal, and the entire community is well-versed in how to pull off an event with a big-time feel to it.

I was worried about the crush of runners at the starting line, as all races started at the same time. But runners were self-seeded into starting corrals by race pace, just like at big city marathons. Your starting position wasn't based on the distance ran, only the projected time per mile pace. This keeps the mortals from being trampled by the elites as over 2000 athletes funnel east down the two narrow lanes of Main Street.

Local veteran takes the trip of a lifetime

Local Korean War veteran Jerry Gray was selected for the Ozarks Honor Flight in June along with 74 other veterans from around the area. The 75 veterans, 75 guardians, three doctors and three nurses, the group set out for a one-day adventure on June 23.

Honor Flight was founded in 2005 when Earl Morse, a physician assistant and retired Air Force captain, asked one of his patients if he would like to go see the World War II Memorial in Washington D.C. After that, other pilots stepped in and eventually the small project turned into a huge initiative to take the nation's veterans to see their memorials free of charge. Currently, there are 133 hubs for the Honor Flight Network in 41 different states.

Gray boarded his flight at 4 a.m. in Springfield to return at 10 p.m. that same night, but the one day packed a lifetime of memories that will follow him the rest of his days.

Gray served in the U.S. Navy as a dental technician stationed at Charleston, South Carolina, from January 1952 to January 1955. Not only did Gray get to see the Korean War Memorial, but he also got to see the memorials for WWII, the Marine Corps, Vietnam and Air Force. He also saw the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier and the Arlington National Cemetery.

While in Washington

D.C. Gray had an unexpected visitor. He ran into Senator Roy Blunt, whom he had met before in Joplin during the Korean War Memorial at eh VFW.

Gray said, "It's really a neat deal. It was great, they don't need to change a thing."

One of the unexpected elements of his trip was the mail call while they were in D.C. Gray said, "It was just like mail call in the service. We got hundreds of letters and cards from school kids from all over the area." Gray said he got letters from Cassville as well as Branson and Rogersville.

Among the letters, were many thank you's from kids and adults alike. The messages were touching for each of the veterans, but Gray said that one girl included her address so that he could write her back.

Gray felt honored to be a part of the flight and returned with memories he won't forget. Gray lives in

Cassville with his wife, Patricia. His children include Lisa Schell, of Cassville, Chris Gray, of Neosho, and James Anthony Gray, of San Diego, California. Gray's grandchildren are Grace Schell and Sean Gray.

RACE from 14A

With chip timing, your starting position is not a handicap as your race clock doesn't trigger until you carry your chip over the starting line.

Race awards and ceremony were outstanding. The awards were handed out in the shadow of the Tom and Huck statue at the west edge of the historic downtown district, just a block from the boyhood home of Mark Twain, and a quarter mile from the Mississippi River.

The Bad

The courses are billed as United States Track and Field certified courses, but they are not listed on the USATF page of certified courses. I alerted Angie Wilcoxson, the excellent race director, to that fact and let it go at that. If anyone can post a state record on any of the Cannibal distances, they should be training with the national team, not running along the Mississippi on July 4.

The Ugly

The trip itself from Cassville was grueling but better than in the past thanks to the road improvements from Lake of the Ozarks past Jefferson City.

For all the great historic sites and things to see and do, Hannibal has a dark side. Many of the ancient Victorian homes close to downtown are blighted, with entire neighborhoods needing either major renovations or a demolition crew. Suggestion: stick to the beaten paths and focus on the positives.

Hannibal could use more motels. Accommodations were hard to find, even for those of us trying to book rooms in late May and early June. But we found a room.

Thumbs up

Hannibal is a great place to celebrate the Fourth of July, even for non-runners. There really is something for everyone in Hannibal.

Flooding closes bridges and roads

Numerous bridges and roads were closed all over the county after the torrential downpours came down all over southwest Missouri. Flat Creek swelled significantly from the approximate six inches of rain received Tuesday leaving many bridges and roads engulfed in flood waters. OVER 50 YEARS COMBINED EXPERIENCE

USDA offers Biomass Crop Assistance Program

The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) today announced that incentives will resume this summer for farmers, ranchers and forest landowners interested in growing and harvesting biomass for renewable energy. The support comes through the Biomass Crop Assistance Program (BCAP), which was reauthorized by the 2014 Farm Bill. BCAP provides financial assistance to establish and maintain new crops of energy biomass, or who harvest and deliver forest or agricultural residues to a qualifying energy facility.

Financial assistance is available through BCAP for costs associated with harvesting and transporting agriculture or forest residues to facilities that convert biomass crops into energy. Eligible crops may include corn residue, diseased or insect infested wood materials, or orchard waste. The energy facility must first be approved by USDA to accept the biomass crop. Facilities can apply for, or renew, their BCAP qualification status beginning today. $11.5 million of federal funds will be allocated to support the delivery of biomass materials through December 2015. Last year, more than 200,000 tons of dead or diseased trees from the National Forests and Bureau of Land Management lands were removed and used to produce renewable energy, while reducing the risk of forest fire. Nineteen energy facilities in 10 states participated in the program.

Farmers, ranchers and forest landowners can also receive financial assistance to grow biomass crops that will be converted into energy in selected BCAP project areas. New BCAP project area proposals will be solicited beginning this summer and accepted through fall 2015, with new project loud inside the building." No charges were filed for the incident.

The Cadillac driven, by Wallace H. Adams, 89, of Cassville, went completely through the front window, causing the window to need to be replaced.

Lowe's Auto Glass replaced the window and Whittemire said, "Scott Lowe has been great through this whole thing; he has done a great job." Whittemire also added that there hasn't been much of a strain put on the sales of the store since the crash, other than they couldn't utilize the affected area very well.

Whittemire said the only thing left to finish on the window is the trimming. Westco hopes to eventually replace the other window to look like the new one. Whittemire said, "It draws attention that we are here, and it looks really good."

"Mr. Adams comes into the store periodically to check on the progress of the window," said Whit-

temire

Originally, the estimated costs for the window, furniture and carpet were $22,000. The final costs were very close to the estimation. "State Farm insurance took excellent care of the issue," said Whittemire.

Whittemire and the rest of the Westco employees are very pleased with the new window. "We are just happy that nobody got hurt, that's the most important thing," said Whittemire.
